11. Read & Agree to the 10 Confidential Disclosure Terms & Conditions:

Confidential Disclosure Terms and Conditions

I, [Name], hereby acknowledge that Polaris may provide Proprietary Information, as defined in Section 2 below, to Company for the sole purpose of the parties including any existing potential business opportunities ("Purpose"). The parties acknowledge that it is in the best interest of the parties to enter into this Confidential Disclosure Agreement ("CDA") in order to ensure that the Proprietary Information of the parties remains confidential and is not disclosed to any third party.

2. Purpose

Company hereby acknowledges that Polaris may provide Proprietary Information, as defined in Section 2 below, to Company for the sole purpose of the parties including any existing potential business opportunities ("Purpose"). The parties acknowledge that it is in the best interest of the parties to enter into this Confidential Disclosure Agreement ("CDA") in order to ensure that the Proprietary Information of the parties remains confidential and is not disclosed to any third party.

3. Proprietary Information Defined

As used in this CDA, the term "Proprietary Information" means and includes all information that (a) at the time of initial disclosure to Company, is marked, labeled or specifically designated in writing as "Proprietary Information", or (b) qualifies as proprietary information because it is information of any form whatsoever relating to Polaris or its affiliate or subsidiary's: (i) financial information, including, but not limited to, financial statements, business plans, projections, data and accounting records; (ii) product specifications and designs, models or builds, manufacturing processes, methods and know-how, production methods, production schedules, quality assurance methods, new product development methods, prices, terms, trade secrets and source procedures; (iii) sales, marketing and customer information, including, but not limited to, sales proposals, business proposals and plans, the identity and list of customers and Polaris' methods of marketing and promotion, advertising, marketing plans and proposals, operations, work product, names of, or agreements with, any of Polaris' customers, or representatives of any of the foregoing; (iv) computer software, including, but not limited to, source and object codes, flowcharts, algorithms, search records, routines, report formats, data conversion, assemblies, design concepts and related documentation, manuals, and other materials; or (v) documents, inventions, copyrights, patents and ideas, whether generated or not, and including without limitation the nature and result of research, development, manufacturing, marketing, planning, and other business activities.

4. Return of Proprietary Information

Company agrees that Polaris shall retain all copyright, rights, title and interest in any specifications, designs, documents, technical data, non-identifiable customer data, and all other data and analysis and other Proprietary Information provided by Polaris to Company.

5. Non-Disclosure and Non-Use

Company hereby agrees that it will (i) maintain the confidential nature of any and all Proprietary Information disclosed to it pursuant to this CDA; (ii) use such Proprietary Information solely to accomplish the Purpose; (iii) use reasonable efforts and diligence to safeguard such Proprietary Information and to protect it against disclosure, reuse, appropriation, loss and theft; (iv) use at least the same degree of care, but no less than a reasonable degree of care, to safeguard and protect from disclosure such Proprietary Information as it uses with its own proprietary information that it does not wish to disclose; (v) not disclose to others, or permit any person or entity under its control to use or disclose to others, such Proprietary Information, except as expressly permitted by this CDA, or as may otherwise be expressly authorized by Polaris in writing; and (vi) provide reasonable written notice to Polaris in the event it discloses a loss or unauthorized disclosure of such Proprietary Information.

6. Remedial Disclosure

Company may disclose the Proprietary Information to any third party if such third party requires access to such Proprietary Information to accomplish the Purpose contemplated herein, but only if such third party, agent or representative agrees to treat the Proprietary Information in accordance with this CDA, and (ii) if disclosure is required by Company pursuant to a law, judicial order or governmental directive, in which event Company shall provide Polaris with written notice of any such required disclosure prior to disclosing the Proprietary Information, and Company shall take reasonable steps to restrict the confidentiality of the Proprietary Information.

7. Return of Proprietary Information

Company agrees that at the completion of the Purpose contemplated herein, or within five (5) days of a request and direction by Polaris, the Company shall (i) promptly return to Polaris, or destroy as specified by Polaris, all documents, files or other material embodying the Proprietary Information then in its possession, or under its control; (ii) verify its return or destruction of the Proprietary Information, as the case may be, upon demand by Polaris; and (iii) not retain any copies or records of the Proprietary Information except for a file to be retained by the Company's legal counsel. The return or authorized destruction of the Proprietary Information pursuant to the terms, or as a result of any termination of this CDA, shall have no effect on the obligations imposed on Company with respect to the protection and non-disclosure of the Proprietary Information for the full period of time required under Section 4 hereof.

8. Survival

All of the provisions set forth in this CDA are continuing terms and shall survive the return or authorized destruction of the Proprietary Information pursuant to Section 7 hereof, any other termination of this CDA, and the expiration date of any subsequent agreement relating to the Proprietary Information that the parties may choose to enter into, with the exception of made events, the obligation to treat Proprietary Information in accordance with this CDA will expire five (5) years from the date of initial disclosure to Company. In the case of trade secrets, the obligation shall remain in perpetuity.

9. Inseparable Entity

The parties acknowledge and agree that if Company breaches this CDA, then Polaris will suffer irreparable harm. The parties agree that such irreparable injury suffered by Polaris as a result of Company's breach cannot be compensated by money alone, and agree that a court order compelling Company then continuing to breach this CDA is proper and warranted.

10. Governing Law

This CDA and the rights of the parties hereunder shall be governed by and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of Wisconsin, without giving effect to the principle of conflict of laws. The parties submit and consent to the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal or state courts of Wisconsin for any claim or action arising from or relating to this CDA.

11. Rights and Acknowledgments

The parties agree that nothing in this CDA shall be construed as (i) creating a right or obligation for or on either party to purchase or sell specific goods or services or (ii) creating a license or authorization to use the other party's (i) products or (ii) goods or (iii) services or (iv) other intellectual property, including, but not limited to, patents, trademarks, trade secrets, or other confidential information.
